

THE MILLSTONE

at ADAMS POND

INTERESTING FACTS

1865 SHERMAN'S TROOPS MARCHED THROUGH COLUMBIA, SC, BURNING ALMOST THE ENTIRE CITY. During the march through Columbia, Sherman's troops traveled down the original Bluff Road, which is now part of the driveway of The Millstone at Adams Pond. The house that was on the property during that time was burned by Sherman's troops.

THE LOCATION OF THE MILLSTONE AT ADAMS POND IS THE LINE WHERE MOSS GROWS IN THE TREES – naturally. This provides a truly unique and southern setting not found at any other facility in Columbia.

THE POND THAT SITS IN FRONT OF THE ADAMS HOUSE – also known as Adams Pond – was one of the original three swimming holes in Columbia, SC during the 1920's & 1930's.

THE HOUSE that now stands on the property was built in 1925.

THE HOUSE remained in the Adams' family until 2001 – when Mr. Adams sold the house & the surrounding land.

THE GEARS that sit on the bridge house operate the spillway and are still in working condition today.

SITTING ONLY YARDS AWAY FROM THE HOUSE IS A BEAUTIFUL PECAN ORCHARD – complete with moss hanging from the branches of every tree.

THE MILLSTONE AT ADAMS POND NOW COMPRISES 30 ACRES OF LAND, east of the city of Columbia, off Bluff Road.

TWO OF THE ORIGINAL MILLSTONES can be found at the foot of the front patio gates.

THE MILLSTONE AT ADAMS POND was originally a gritsmill.

THERE IS A BEAUTIFUL MURAL THAT WINDS UP THE STAIRCASE IN THE HOUSE.

This mural, original to the house, will remain as part of the history of the Millstone at Adams Pond.
